INTRODUCTION

This directory was compiled the Alliance for Healthy Communities (AHC) in order to provide a listing of youth-family resources accessible to the communities of west central St. Louis County. The purpose of this directory is to enhance awareness of, and access to, local resources specific to positive youth development and family wellness. The information provided was gathered through online surveys of area residents as well as through research of larger, regional directories.

This directory is provided for informational purposes only. Inclusion does not represent an endorsement of the organizations. Community stakeholders who are aware of additional resources that could be included in future directory revisions are invited to send that information to the AHC director, Ken McManus: kmcmanus@parkwayschools.net.

AHC is a grant funded, community coalition hosted by the Parkway School District. AHC exists as a platform for building collaborative partnerships through which innovative programs can be delivered that will (a) change community conditions that enable youth substance abuse and risk for suicide and (b) increase the number of area youth who are meaningfully involved in their schools and communities.

Efforts have been made to ensure the accuracy of the information contained in the directory that follows.
